

Thanks to the project NATSTOCER, Gardenia implemented a manufacturing plant able to produce natural stone-like ceramic tile by means of a process which completely substitute the current superficial finishing phases (polishing/lapping/brushing) without using water and render possible these kinds of treatments also on structured surfaces. The plant is a closed productive plant in which solid waste produced are reinserted in the productive cycle, before as abrasive materials, then as raw materials.

NATSTOCER PROJECT